Discussion PC Mission Statement and a vision statement

Our school mission statement is as follows. “The mission of Journey School is to educate K-8 students in southern California by offering Steiner (Waldorf) based educational methods in a public school setting. Journey School is dedicated to the optimal development of the intellect, social-emotional well-being, and physical capacities of each student, by presenting core academic subjects artistically. Journey School will enable each student to read, write, speak, and calculate with clarity and precision. Furthermore, students will have the ability to think imaginatively, creatively and become competent, life-long learners. “

PC’s statement should reflect the mission of the school but focus on the work that we as a collective of PC members and parents do. I found a nice article below if you’d like to read it on creating mission statements by Janel M. Radtke

She suggests that to begin a work sheet be created with words, phrases or ideas from members of the organization. That the statement answers three questions, what are the needs or opportunities that we exist for, what are we doing to address those needs, and what principles or beliefs guide our work?
